

Please share this with your parents

Dear Student,

Greetings from EducationUSA@USIEF, New Delhi!

EducationUSA, New Delhi invites your parents to Parents meet Parents – a unique event exclusively for parents (no students allowed!) to have their questions answered on U.S. higher education and sending their child to a U.S. university. They will meet parents of students who are currently studying in the U.S., parents of students leaving this year in the fall and parents of other aspiring students planning to pursue higher education in the U.S. in 2020 and beyond.

So, talk away your concerns with parents who have been there, done that! Limited seats available. Sign-up today at <http://bit.ly/PmP19BME>

The event will be conducted in panel-discussion format. Panelists will include parents who have had the experience of sending their children to the U.S. for higher education. They will talk about their experiences and their children's journey to colleges in the U.S. The audience will have a chance to network, discuss and learn from them on how to become more supportive in their children's pursuit for U.S. higher education. This is a chance for you to ask panelists questions such as the maturity level of students for this transition, coping with security concerns, adjusting to the U.S. academic system, financial concerns, any myth/fear or source of anxiety that they may have about sending their child abroad for higher education. We have also attached the detailed event agenda for your information.
